IS THIS SOLDIER GEORGE TAYLOR?

Man in Georgia Supposed to Be Missing Missourian.

SLAYER OF MECKS FAMILY

ESCAPED FROM PRISON ON THE EVE OF EXECUTION.

The Story of the Appalling Crime of the Two Brothers, Their First Escape and Pursuit and Capture in Arkansas Wilds.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 18.—Atlanta officers are positive that George Burrus, the United States army soldier arrested at Fort McPherson, is George Taylor, wanted in Sullivan County, Missouri, for the murder of the Meeks family in 1894. The man enlisted from Butte, Mont., but now admits that he came from Sullivan County, Missouri. He knows all about the Meeks crime, for which William Taylor, his brother, was hanged.

Burrus, or Taylor, had letters and pictures and other documents, which indicate that he is Taylor, the fugitive.

He is said to have confessed his crime to fellow-soldiers, who betrayed his confidence, causing Burrus' arrest.

Among Burrus' effects were two fine book marks inscribed "G. B. T.," pasted on them. He says they belonged to a friend. The man made no resistance, but denies that he is the murderer. Officer Bryan, who arrested him, says there is a reward of $500 for Taylor.

MECKS FAMILY MURDER.

The murder of the Meeks family, of which William and George Taylor were convicted and sentenced to be hanged, was committed on George Taylor's farm, in Sullivan County, Missouri, on the night of May 10, 1894. Gus Meeks was a person held in small esteem by his neighbors in Linn County. The only ones who seemed to have any use for him were the Taylor brothers, one of whom, William, owned a bank in Brownsville, and the other of whom, George, owned a fine farm and such a good reputation as a farmer. Finally Meeks was convicted of stealing cattle and was sent to the penitentiary. Then he told that George Taylor was the instigator of the theft, and also that he knew a great deal about a case of arson that William Taylor had been mixed up in. He was pardoned so that he might be eligible to testify at the trial of George Taylor on the cattle stealing charge, and went to the home of his mother in Sullivan County.

Soon thereafter George and William Taylor called on him. In an interview, at which Meeks' mother was present, the Taylor brothers offered Meeks $500 and a wagon and team if he would leave the country and never return. Meeks gave the promise.

On the evening of May 10, 1894, George and William Taylor went to Meeks' home, where Meeks had preceded them, and took with them a fine team and a wagon. Meeks loaded his family, consisting of his wife and three young children, into the wagon, and with the Taylor brothers, drove away.

Child Tells.

Next morning Nellie Meeks, the youngest child, wandered to the home of Mrs. Sallie Carter, a neighbor of George Taylor. The little girl was covered with blood, and there was an ugly wound in her head. She was badly dazed, and could only say that her father, mother, brother and sister were under a haystack on Mr. Taylor's farm and that they were all bloody, and she couldn't wake them up.

Mrs. Carter called some neighbors, and the haystack on the Taylor farm was visited. Well hidden beneath the straw were the bodies of all the Meeks family, save Nellie.

As soon as George saw the searchers approach the haystack he saddled his fastest horse and rode at breakneck speed to Brownsville. There he hurried into his brother's bank, called him to one side and told him of the investigation. William left his bank at once, mounted a fast horse, and the two brothers rode away as rapidly as they could.

The Taylors Caught in Arkansas.

After the Taylor boys had been missing for several months they were discovered and captured in North Arkansas by Jerry South, a lawyer and state senator of Mountain Home, and taken to Little Rock. There he spent a day, took his prisoners to a session of a Democratic state convention and thence to Brownsville, Mo.

A change of venue was asked and granted, and the trial of the Taylors was held in Carrollton, the county seat of Carroll County. The first trial resulted in a verdict of murder in the first degree, with nihilism fixed at hanging. All the resources that clever lawyers could think of were exhausted and the case was taken to the supreme court.

The facts so strongly weave the web of circumstances around the defendants, and fetter them to the bloody deed, that it would seem that there could be but one opinion as to their guilt.

The two men were sentenced to be hanged at Carrollton on Thursday, April 8.

George Taylor Escaped.

Shortly after dark on the night of April 11, Night Watchman Shelton, on duty at the jail, heard a noise at the further side of the jail, and saw William Taylor.

He hurried around and saw William Taylor half way down a rubber tree. He had been seen from the roof to the ground. Above him and just starting down was Lee Cunningham, also a convict. Shelton compelled both of them to surrender, and asked them where George Taylor was. They said he was still on top of the tree.

George Taylor Before His Escape

From a Photograph Taken in the Carrollton Jail in 1896.

But, afterwards it was decided that he had made his escape by sliding down a smokestack on the other side of the jail, while Shelton was watching for him.

Heavy posies with dogs were placed on the trail of Taylor, but he was never found. The people of the country were very indignant over the escape. Some of them declared that it had been connived at, and numbers of people of the same opinion came up from Brownsville. The situation grew so threatening that the sheriff who had been bitterly denounced by his face a number of times and accused of having allowed George Taylor to escape, hurried William to Kansas City for safekeeping. Later it was discovered that Taylor had cut his way out the night he was taken to Kansas City, had been left alone.

The search for George continued, and various reports of his capture kept Carroll County officers traveling all over the state. On the day before he was to be hanged William Taylor was taken back to Carrollton so heavily manacled that he could not walk. When he was searched a sachet card was found in a pocket over his heart. On it were curls taken from the golden hair of his children. He begged that he be allowed to keep the card, but the sheriff examined it. Inside was a powder. Analysis showed it was strychnine, and it was discovered that Taylor had a small saw in his mouth. After this his heavy guard was increased, and he was kept in every stitch of clothing taken from him and supplied with an entirely new outfit. And the watch was increased, and the next day he was taken to the penitentiary.

It was discovered that Taylor had not been hanged. George Taylor has been captured until they see him and have him locked safely in the Carrollton jail.

Funeral of John A. Dillon

Services Will be Held at Home of Jesse A. McDonald, Monday Afternoon.

The funeral of John A. Dillon, the former St. Louis Journalist who died at Fort Harbor, Mo., Wednesday, will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Jesse A. McDonald, 421 McPherson avenue. The body will arrive at the home at 1 o'clock, and the family home at Orange, N. J. No further arrangements for the funeral have been made as yet.

A Way to Cure Hiccoughs

Dr. Nietert's Successful Prescription Was Rest and Perfect Quiet.

Frank Finney, who was taken to the City Hospital a few days ago suffering from a violent and continuous attack of hiccoughs, has recovered and when Dr. Nietert is convinced that everything to prevent a recurrence of the spasm has been done, the patient will be released from the institution. The case has attracted widespread interest and Dr. Nietert is in receipt of scores of letters from persons resident in various parts of the country, in the majority of which efficacious treatments are suggested. Dr. Nietert's plan to effect a cure, which has been successful, was to give the patient perfect rest and quiet.

Thought Negress Was White

But Justice, Who Married Her to White Man at Night, Is Promptly Removed.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 18.—Gov. McSweeney has removed from office Magistrate Thomas F. Bryken of Darlington, because he performed the marriage ceremony for a white man and a mulatto woman.

Bryken says the couple called on him at night and he did not suspect the bride had negro blood.

The governor has instructed the state solicitor to prosecute, holding that all three parties have committed a penitentiary offense. The marriage performed by Bryken cannot be binding under the state constitution.

"Priestess" Killed Herself

Miss Craddock Was About to be Sentenced on Conviction of Circulating Obscene Literature.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Ida C. Craddock, who was to have been sentenced for disseminating obscene literature, took her own life a few hours before the time appointed.

The facts so strongly weave the web of circumstances around the defendants, and fetter them to the bloody deed, that it would seem that there could be but one opinion as to their guilt.

The two men were sentenced to be hanged at Carrollton on Thursday, April 8.

ALUM WOULD COST $368 A DAY

Sum City Would Have to Pay for Clarifying Water.

ESTIMATE MADE BY CHEMIST

IN SUMMER THE COST WOULD OFTEN GO TO $857.

Ex-Water Commissioner Holman Says
Amount of Alum Required Would Be From One to Three Grains to a Gallon.

If the city of St. Louis should use alum to clarify the water supply, it would use, at the lowest estimate, an average of 65,000,000 grains of the chemical a day.

There are 7000 grains in a pound. A pound of commercial alum, or sulphate of aluminum, costs two cents. There are 100 pounds in a barrel. A barrel costs $8. Twenty-three barrels are the equivalent of 65,000,000 grains. Twenty-three barrels would cost $184.

This computation is based on the statement of the water department that the average distribution of water per day is 65,000,000 gallons and the statement of the chemists that it will require at least a grain of alum to clarify a gallon of water.

According to the chemists the condition of the water might be such at times that three grains would be needed. That would make the cost three times as great, or $552 a day.

Some Summer Days
Cost Would Be $857.

Some days in midsummer the water department distributed 100,000,000 gallons. On such a day, if a grain of alum was sufficient to clear a gallon of water, 100,000,000 grains of alum would be used, at a cost of $1235. If three grains were necessary to clarify a gallon of water on such a day, 300,000,000 grains would be required, at a cost of $857.

Ex-Water Commissioner H. L. Holman is authority for the statement that the amount of alum required would be from one to three grains to the gallon. His statement is based on the results of experiments made under the supervision of the chemist John Wixford over a period of several years.

Alum clarifies water by carrying with it to the bottom whatever is in suspension in the water. The presence of lime in the water is necessary. If there is no lime the precipitate will not be formed and the coagulation will not take place.

If there is no lime in the water naturally, lime has to be introduced where alum is used.

Alum may be introduced either in lump or powdered state, or in the form of a saturated solution. It is usually introduced in solution because it is then ready to do its work of coagulation at once.

The chemists reduced to solution in vats or tanks at the edge of the reservoirs in which it is to be used.

As soon as the solution is mixed with the water the process of coagulation will begin, provided always that there is lime in the water. Light flocks of precipitate are formed. These sink slowly to the bottom of the reservoir. The suspended solids are caught by the sinking flocks and carried to the bottom. The clarified water can then be drawn off and distributed.

The degree of clarity is determined by the amount of alum used. Experts say that the water cannot be made perfectly clear by coagulation without using more alum than would be wholesome.

Filtration Plan Unsettled

Water Commissioner Flad's Draft of an Ordinance Sent to City Council for Legal Opinion.

Water Commissioner Flad's draft of an ordinance for a filtration plant was sent to the city council yesterday instead of being considered by the City Council. This action was taken to establish the superiority of a committee of the whole approving the ordinance over the unfavorable report on the measure of the water committee, or otherwise.

There is something of a wrangle over the ordinance, a former bill presented by Commissioner Flad having been held up in the council on the ground that it embodied two methods for purifying water.

Mrs. Rachel Richman Insane

Wife of Wealthy Glass Manufacturer Was Accused of Stealing $25,000 Necklace Last Summer.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Mrs. Rachel B. Richman, the wife of Louis L. Richman, a wealthy glass manufacturer of this city, was declared insane today.

At Alexandria Bay, N. Y., last summer, she was accused of stealing a $25,000 diamond and pearl necklace and $437 in cash, the property of a bride.

Sincere efforts were made to keep the facts quiet and Justice Pardon C. Williams of the Supreme Court finally admitted to $10,000 bail.

The lunacy trial was unusual in that it was held in secret before a jury of twelve.

Mrs. Richman arrived at a summer hotel in Alexandria Bay about the same time that the Mr. Delabarre of this city registered. The rooms assigned to the Richmans and the Delabarres were near each other and both opened on the same veranda.

The Delabarres went downstairs to dinner. After returning, they sat for a while on the veranda. On returning to their rooms Mrs. Delabarre's necklace could not be found.

"THE ST. LOUIS GIBSON GIRL" TO BE MARRIED

MISS EDITH A. HENRY.

Miss Edith A. Henry to Become the Wife of Thomas A. Vickroy.

Miss Edith A. Henry, "The St. Louis Gibson Girl," is shortly to become the bride of Thomas A. Vickroy.

The engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Henry, of 332 Bell avenue.

Miss Henry's striking resemblance to the type of handsome American girl made famous by the artist, Charles Dana Gibson has won for her the title, among her friends, of "the Gibson Girl."

She is a tall young woman of the blonde type—one of the kind described by Tennyson:

"A daughter of the gods, divinely tall
And most divinely fair."

In musical circles Miss Henry is well known. She is a soprano soloist whose charming voice has been heard at many social and semi-professional gatherings in the few years past.

Mr. Vickroy is a well-known young business man of this city, and the Gibson Girl, though a matron, will remain in St. Louis after marriage.

MISS EON TOOK THE FIRST EVENT

First Race at Fair Grounds
Won by 15 to 1 Racer.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FAIR GROUNDS, Oct. 18.—It was a mild and pleasant afternoon that greeted racegoers Saturday. The track had dried out considerably, but it was still far from being good. It was lumpy and slow, and hard to negotiate. It was such a track as Frank Bell likes, but it would not suit Lady Strathmore.

There was a large attendance present. The magnet that attracted the crowd was the Laurel stake, in which several crack sprinters took part.

First race, five furlongs, selling—Miss Eon, 15 to 1, first; Happy Chance, 30 to 1, second; Mark Forward, 10 to 1, third; Holway, 2 to 1, fourth; Adair, 10 to 1, fifth; Johnson, 7 to 1, sixth. Time, 1:41.

Second race, six furlongs, selling—Lady Strathmore, 15 to 1, first; Happy Chance, 30 to 1, second; Mark Forward, 10 to 1, third; Holway, 2 to 1, fourth; Adair, 10 to 1, fifth; Johnson, 7 to 1, sixth. Time, 1:41.

Third race, one mile and seventy yards, purse—Fund, 97, first; Old Bellamy, 95, second; Lady Strathmore, 107, third; Chippewa, 100, fourth; Glenwood, 95, fifth; Lemon, 85, sixth; Billie Mable, 85, seventh; Panic, 100, eighth. Time, 1:41.

"KELLY ON IRON MOUNTAIN TRAIN"

This Was the Tip Received by Chief Desmond.

OFFICERS SEARCHED THE TRAIN

INFORMATION CAME FROM DE
SOTO AND SEEMED GOOD.

Detectives Boarded Train at Carondelet and at Tower Grove and Later
Telephoned to Chief That
Kelly Was Not a Passenger.

Chief Desmond's office received information this morning that Charles F. Kelly, the fugitive member of the House of Delegates, was on an Iron Mountain train which was due to leave De Soto, Mo., at 12:15 o'clock noon.

The chief thought so much of the tip that he sent a man to board the incoming train at Tower Grove and Vandeventer avenues stations and take the man into custody should he be aboard.

At 2:10 o'clock Chief Desmond received a telephone message from one of his men to the effect that Kelly was not on the train when it reached Tower Grove Station.

An extra guard was sent out to Kelly's residence from the office of the chief of detectives in order to prevent the fugitive's entrance should he attempt to make one.

A sergeant and two policemen from the Carondelet station also searched the train at the foot of Tesson street, and they, too, telephoned that Kelly was not a passenger.

AN INDICTMENT

"COL." ED BUTLER

"I Suppose Circuit Attorney Folk Is After Me."

"BUT IT DOES NOT WORRY ME"

DENIES ANY CONNECTION WITH THE $47,500 LIGHTING SCANDAL.

An Information Will Be Filed by the Circuit Attorney Today—Helms, Tamblin and Schumacher Have Turned State's Evidence.

In an interview with a Post-Dispatch reporter today "Col." Edward Butler was asked if he understood that the common report that the grand jury would find an indictment against a certain individual who is believed to have put up $47,500 to secure the passage of the lighting bill, referred to him.

He replied that he had no knowledge of what the grand jury intended to do, but said: "I guess Circuit Attorney Folk is trying to indict me again and it is possible he may succeed."

"Would an indictment surprise you?" he was asked.

He replied: "It would neither surprise nor worry me."

"There is absolutely nothing to this talk about my having handled the money on that bill. I did not receive a check from Jim Campbell, or anybody else to cash for any member of the House of Delegates or anyone who might have been authorized to represent that body. There were no checks drawn to my favor for $47,500 Nov. 18, 1899, to make up the so-called fund which it is said was given to the delegates to vote for that bill."

"THE OLD MAN"

Butler's attention was drawn to the fact that Delegates Helms, Schumacher and Tamblin had gone before the grand jury and probably revealed all they knew of the origin of the $47,500.

"I don't know anything about that," he said. "I suppose Merrell told all he knew when he said sum was put up."

"Now," he continued, "the whole fact of the matter is that no matter what bill was up for consideration before the Municipal Assembly, or passed the assembly, I was always credited with directing action upon it."

BLAMES POLITICS

"You might name any bill that has come up there, and if you inquired who was back of it probably you would be told that it was I."

"Hearay testimony doesn't prove anything," he said. "I guess there are a whole lot of people in St. Louis who would be just as credible witnesses as some of the men whom I have named."

"This fight on me started with politics and has been kept up on that account. I am not afraid of the fight or the men who are arrayed against me. As I said, there is nothing that can worry me."

"Col." Butler, with his family, returned to St. Louis from Columbia Monday evening.

The veteran politician is more than charmed with classic Columbia, and paid a tribute to the hospitable reception that was accorded him.

He took occasion to deny an interview, sent out from Columbia, to the effect that he said, in reply to W. T. Anderson, that "education is — of an industry."

"I didn't use language of that sort," he said most emphatically. "Why would I? I think all the world of a man who had a good education, and I brought my sons and daughters up with as good an education as they desired."

"Columbia is all right. I am satisfied with the people there, and am convinced that I will get a fair trial. I met some acquaintances whom I had not seen in 20 years. They recognized me, but not till after they identified themselves did I know them."

"I spent part of my last day there going through the university. That's a great institution."

GRANDJURY RESTS TODAY. No session of the grand jury was held this morning and none will be held during the remainder of the day, but it is stated by an authority that an information will be filed today by Circuit Attorney Folk, at the grand jury's request, charging bribery.

The information will be issued as a result of the testimony given to the grand jury Friday by former Delegates Tamblin, Helms and Schumacher, who turned state's evidence.

They told all they knew about the source of the $47,500, which Charles F. Kelly distributed to the "combine" at the Lehmann residence in return for their support of the lighting bill.

As a result of their testimony it is unofficially announced that the grand jury will not need the testimony of Kelly to secure a conviction. Kelly was the only man who furnished the money which Kelly distributed.

Until Friday Tamblin, Helms and Schumacher made no admissions concerning the lighting scandal. Then, it appears, they communicated their desire to Mr. Folk to turn state's evidence.

He spent an hour in consultation with them and then sent them before the grand jury. After they had left the grand jury room the announcement was made that Kelly's testimony was no longer needed.

WILL BANQUET ON GOAT MEAT

GOAT MEAT FEAST IS IN PROSPECT

ANGORA RANCH PROMOTERS WILL FEED THEIR FRIENDS.

ALL COURSES WILL BE OF GOAT

Angora Fritters, Kid Chops, Aunt Nanny's Kid Patties and Fried Goats on the Menu.

Farewell to real and venison! Adieu to sheep and goats! The goat's latest benison is given to the goat.

If you receive an invitation to a goat-meat banquet at the Flanery Hotel on the evening of Oct. 29, don't mistake it for a pre-Hallowe'en joke.

Don't imagine that somebody is kidding you, either. Be careful not to assume that some festive friend is trying to make you the butt of his ridicule.

Nothing of the sort. The invitation will come that Col. Zack Muhall, Harry J. Cantwell, A. B. Hult, and other pioneers in carnivorous gastronomy, will give you a banquet of goat-meat.

These gentlemen are of the Frisco Livestock Co., recently organized in St. Louis to establish an immense Angora goat ranch near Cuba, Mo., for the purpose of introducing goat meat to the public taste, and for other purposes.

To eat your Uncle Billy, Your Aunt Nanny too, Served up the same as diet for the sick (or sold for profit) You needn't be a capitalist in South Sea Island trade; Nay, you can live in Istanbul and be a millionaire.

At this banquet the guests are promised several savory courses, all goat. The dinner will begin with goat soup and end with goat cheese.

There will be ice cream made of goat's milk. There will be kid chops, breaded in cutlets, billy goat roast. No meat other than goat will be eligible.

Though the menu has not been definitely made up, the following dishes have been suggested to the hosts of the occasion for their approval:

Fried goat, goat-fried Pans. Unadorned kid. Unadorned goat. Lodge goat, ancient order. Goat meat, ancient order. Uncle Billy goat, ancient order. Uncle Billy goat, ancient order.

Angora roast, scrubbed. Angora roast, scrubbed. Angora roast, scrubbed. Angora roast, scrubbed.

Col. Muhall and Mr. Hult, who are Angora fanciers of long experience, are said to have concocted a goat friandise that can not fail to turn the heads of the guests. For, eating the brush and ignoring the goat, they clear the land where they footle have.

And we who devour thee, O fair Angora, are feeding thee, O fair Angora, are feeding thee, O fair Angora, are feeding thee.

Mildly Rebuked. From the Washington Star. "Didn't you say that it was going to rain today?" "I did," answered the weather prophet. "But there hasn't been a sign of moisture."

"I am perfectly aware of that fact. All I could do was to order the best outfit on the subject that I could arrive at. If I could accurately forecast events I should quit working for a salary and make a fortune in the stock market."

Now With The Model Otto Hippenmeyer in the Furnishings Department of the New Store.

The Model Clothing Co. has added another well-known salesman to its large and efficient force, Otto Hippenmeyer, who has been in the retail clothing business in St. Louis for over five years, now can be found in the Furnishings Goods Department of the new store, where he will be pleased to have his many friends call upon him.

DRINK WAGER CAUSED DEATH

Ten Glasses of Gin and Four of Rum Killed Stevedore Who Was Teased by Comrades.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 18.—Joseph Kosenski, who was a stevedore, was killed by his comrades because, when out with them, he always stopped drinking after he had a glass or two, instead of keeping it up, as they did.

After he had two drinks last night, they teased him again and Kosenski, declaring he could drink with the best of them, offered to drink ten glasses of gin on a wager. He took them quickly and then topped off with four glasses of rum.

As he was taking the rum he became groggy and was helped home. There he became unconscious and he died today without recovering consciousness.

COLLISION ON CLAYTON ROAD

Five Persons Injured in Smashup Just West of Forsythe Junction.

Five passengers were more or less injured in a collision between cars of the Clayton division just west of Forsythe Junction Thursday night. Steve J. Harris, editor of the Kirkwood Courier, was the most seriously hurt, his back being severely wrenched and his body badly bruised. The knees of Rev. M. R. Sullivan and his wife were sprained and Miss Amelia Heege and Edward Bennington were affected by the fall. The trolley slipped off the wire of a west-bound car, and while it was enmeshed in darkness an east-bound car crashed into it. There is only a single track where the collision occurred, the cars passing by means of switches. It is alleged that when late, motormen sometimes attempt to "steal" the space between switches.

CORSETS IN THE SKY.

That Is Way Sign of the "Kabo" Corsets' Looked.

Crowds of curious persons stood on the downtown street corners the past two nights with necks craned, looking at the words "Kabo Corsets" apparently painted on the sky.

The words appeared directly over the Holland building, a shaft of light from the tower of the cathedral shining down on the nocturnal pedestrians.

Instead of being painted on the stary dome, the inscription is placed on a banner 18 feet long, flying from a string attached to a balloon, which is suspended from the top of the building and is strung 300 feet from the roof.

The balloon is placed on top of the building and is attached to a string which is fastened to the kite. It is 500 feet long and is divided into sections, each containing the words "Kabo Corsets," startlingly resplendent on their inky background.

The balloon is owned by Simon Florndel, of Chicago, head of the corset company. He has displayed the kite in Milwaukee, Minneapolis and Omaha and his agents have been here two weeks they will show the kite through the southern cities.

The kite is known as the "Conyve aeroplanes" and is a new kind of kite. It is not flat, like an ordinary kite, but is constructed more like a dirigible. It is made of a material which has a keel and a rudder and is operated on a scientific basis.

When it is in position at night, the light is thrown upon it in such a way that the words "Kabo Corsets" are visible. Only the banner with the words "Kabo Corsets," is visible.

COAL OUTPUT IN ILLINOIS. Thirty Million Tons Were Mined During Last Year.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 18.—The annual coal report of the State Bureau of Labor Statistics will show that during the year ending June 30, last, Illinois produced 30,000,000 tons, or 75 per cent. of the output of the preceding year.

There were 32 counties in the state which produced more than 100,000 tons of the entire output. Nine counties alone produced 1,000,000 tons, or 3 per cent. of the entire output of the state. These counties, with their output in 1901 and 1902, and their production in those years, are as follows:

DELEGATES STILL ARRIVING.

OMAHA, Oct. 18.—The arrival of delegates to the national convention of the Disciples of Christ has been continuing steadily since the arrival of the first train this morning.

The general committee was busy today assigning pastors to the churches of other denominations, and they will conduct the worship tomorrow, and in preparing for the Christian Endeavor meeting.

The sessions today were again given over to the Woman's Board of Missions, and the general committee was busy today studying, conducted by Wallace C. Payne of Kansas, following which was a brief period of worship.

The report of the committee on education, presented by the Rev. J. C. W. C. Payne, was read by Mrs. W. C. Payne, who outlined the work accomplished during the year and the recommendations for extensions and school building for the coming year.

Mrs. Mary Carpenter, dean of women of Drake University, Des Moines, delivered the morning address on "The College Girl and Mission."

WILL INTEREST EVERYBODY. Or at Least Everyone Who Suffers From Catarrh.

Catarrh in its various forms is a national calamity. It is a disease that nearly everybody suffers from it more or less leads many to neglect its proper treatment.

Nasal catarrh is a common cause of headache, dizziness, loss of smell and if neglected reaches the throat, causing impairment and sometimes total loss of voice. Bronchial catarrh leads easily to consumption. Catarrh of stomach and liver are very serious and obstinate troubles, while it is now generally admitted that catarrh is the most common of all causes of deafness.

All of the more serious forms of catarrh begin with nasal catarrh, the local irritation, a profuse discharge, stoppage of nose, irritation and frequent clearing of the throat, sneezing, coughing and gagging.

The old style of treatment with douches, inhalers, sprays, salves, etc., simply give temporary relief and every one who has used any of them knows how useless they are and their inconvenience is such that very few have the time or patience to continue their use.

A radical cure of catarrh can only be obtained by treatment which removes the catarrhal taint from the blood, because no one will dispute that catarrh is a constitutional or blood disease, and local applications can have no effect except to temporarily relieve local symptoms.

A new remedy which has been remarkably successful in curing catarrh is a pleasant tasting tablet which is taken internally and acts upon the blood and mucous membranes, which other local remedies are unable to reach.

It is composed of antiseptic remedies like Red Gum Bloodroot and similar cleansing specifics which eliminate the catarrhal poison from the system.

The tablets, being pleasant to the taste are dissolved in the mouth and thus reach the throat, trachea and finally the stomach and entire alimentary canal. They are sold by druggists everywhere under the name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets.

If desired, when there is much stoppage of the nose, the tablets may be dissolved in warm water and used as a douche in addition to internal use, but a douche is not at all necessary. A few dissolved in the mouth daily will be sufficient. Dr. Ainslee says: "The regular daily use of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets taken internally will cure the whole catarrhal trouble without resorting to the inconvenience of a douche or an inhaler."

They seem to give a healthy tone to the whole mucous membrane and it is really remarkable how soon they will clear the head and throat of the unusual and poisonous catarrhal secretion.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets is undoubtedly the safest, most palatable and certainly the most effective remedy for any form of catarrh.

WHOSE LIFE PORT

Tricky Missouri River Responsible for the Disaster.

LEAVING BENTON IN OBSCURITY

GOVERNMENT'S ABANDONMENT OF STREAM FATAL TO TOWN.

When River Is Filled With Snags and Little Boats Are Gone Its Glory Will Be Only a Memory.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. BENTON, Mont., Oct. 18.—Montana fears that she is soon to be deprived of her only port and the town of Benton as its chief glory. When the government gives up work on the Missouri river, and that is predicted by many to be soon as the present appropriation is exhausted, the blow will fall.

The average easterner has never heard probably that Montana has a port, and a glance at the map will not confirm the statement. Yet, through the Missouri river and its big sister, the Mississippi, the state has an outlet to the sea. The head of navigation on the Missouri is Fort Benton, and the distance to salt water is more than 3000 miles. It is a voyage that is seldom made, and it is possible that in a short time it will be impossible.

The government has been fighting the Missouri for scores of years, and has grown pretty tired of it. The swirling, winding, treacherous stream of muddy water refuses to stay where the government says it shall stay. It insists on sticking snags in the channel which the government dredgers dig out for the little stern-wheel boats which ply upon it, and in other ways it has proved most troublesome. It has contested every effort to tame it, and now it has practically won its fight. It can become a wild thing again as soon as it likes, so they say.

Railroads Have Superseded Vessels. If the railroads had not made the steamboat business an unprofitable one the United States would have never let up on the Missouri. Within the last 15 or 20 years, however, the country which used to depend on the river has been crisscrossed with railroads. They have grabbed all the freight, and the passengers are of their own accord, so there is little for the steamboat to do. There are a few short runs between railroad points, to be sure, which still show a margin of profit, but there is not enough of them to be claimed to justify the government in spending $500,000 a year in keeping the river open.

It is surprising the extent to which the railroads have built up the Missouri country. From Great Falls to St. Louis there are railroads everywhere. In Montana the record for fast railroad building was broken in 1897, when 500 miles of Great Northern track were laid and ballasted into substantial shape in six months. It was a matter of vital importance that Great Falls be reached by a certain time.

Abandonment of River Is Officially Foreshadowed. But, to return to the Missouri, the abandonment of the river as a means of transportation foreshadowed in the annual report of Capt. H. M. Clifton, chief of United States engineers for the Missouri river commission, who succeeded the Missouri river commission. His report, in part, says: "The discontinuance of the Missouri river commission and the greatly reduced appropriations as compared with former years, for both upper and lower rivers, indicate an intention on the part of Congress to abandon the river altogether in the near future. Before the rendition of the annual report the river in charge will be prepared to submit a comprehensive statement of the conditions of the entire river and the feasibility of nonabandonment of further work upon it."

The government has spent millions of dollars trying to keep the river clear of snags and sandbars, and all the effort counted for nothing. In 1899 an estimate of $500,000 a year was made for keeping the river free from snags. Since that time the government has been making no effort to keep the river clear.

"Where do all the snags come from?" asks the easterner when he sees the extent of the work done by a government snag boat. He looks at the slightly tilted country through which the river runs. The old captain of the boat, whose life-long work has been directing the pulling of these snags, tells you "they just kind of naturally grow there."

Julie Hille, who is like many, the more you pull 'em the bigger they get."

Constantly Undermines the Trees on Banks. As a matter of fact, the river runs through a deep, alluvial soil, and its gnawing work is constantly undermining the trees on the banks. They lodge in different parts of the channel and shortly become snags. Brownboating on the Missouri began in 1813, and the river was full of snags. The first expedition, made by a government party headed for the Yellowstone, was wrecked on a snag. The first expedition to the Yellowstone was wrecked on a snag. The first expedition to the Yellowstone was wrecked on a snag.

They tell many stories of the tricks which the river has played, and some of them would seem to endorse the crooked stream. More and more the government is coming to realize that the river is a menace to the country. The river is a menace to the country. The river is a menace to the country.

DOESN'T MARRY FAMILY. Judge Siders Remark to a Husband With a Grievance.

"When a man marries a girl he is not supposed to marry her whole family," said Judge Siders of the City Hall Police Court this morning, in deciding the case of Adolph Bieger, 323 E. William street, who was charged with disturbing the peace of his father-in-law's family at 1424 South Seventh street.

Bieger, the father-in-law, testified that Bieger entered the back yard last night, rapped on the window, stumbled over the family dog and called the members of the family bad names. The officer who was charged with disturbing the peace under the influence of liquor.

Bieger, in his own defense, declared that he was under the influence of liquor. He said that up to three weeks ago he had been drinking, but that he had stopped drinking to support them, but that he had been drinking again since he had been with them.

WOES OF AN AGED

STATE MILITIA DENOUNCED

Illinois Federation of Labor Declares Capitalists Use It to Oppress Workingmen.

The Illinois State Federation of Labor, which held its annual session in East St. Louis during the week before its adjournment Friday afternoon, adopted a resolution denouncing the state militia because it was used by the capitalists to oppress the workingmen. It was resolved that all union men henceforth should refrain from joining the militia because to do so was to violate their obligations to their unions. A strong resolution was adopted denouncing the state legislature because of the competition of convict labor with free labor in the state, which exempts $15 from the wages of every employed man. A resolution was also adopted calling upon all union men to demand the union label on everything purchased by them.

THIS BELLEVILLE WOMAN HAS BEEN A SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER 50 YEARS

Mrs. E. D. Major Has Been in the Same Church for That Time, and Scholar Who Has Been in Her Class for 35 Years.

Mrs. E. D. Major of Belleville has been a Sunday school teacher for fifty years. For half a century she has taught the Bible in one school. Fifty years ago she began teaching a class in the Sunday school of the First M. E. Church at Belleville and she is still teaching. In all those years she has never failed to teach the Bible lesson on a Sunday morning except when detained at home by sickness. Of all who were in the Sunday school of that church when she began to teach, there is not one beside her in the Sunday school now. Of all the members of the church when she began to teach in the Sunday school, but one remains. That one is B. J. West. One of Mrs. Major's scholars has been in her class for 35 years. Another has been in it for 25 years and two others have been in it for shorter periods. She has two young ladies in her class now whose mother was taught by her when she was a little girl. Many of the mothers of Belleville whose children now fill the Sunday school have been in times past members of her class. When she started to teach her class was composed of little girls, but now it is composed largely of married ladies. Notwithstanding that her health is frail and she is 72 years of age she is never absent from her place at the head of her class unless it is physically impossible for her to be there. Sunday there was a rally at the First M. E. Church and R. W. Ropke, the superintendent, congratulated her for half a century of faithful work and presented her, on behalf of the other teachers and himself, with a Bible. In doing so he said that probably if all the persons Mrs. Major had taught could be gathered together the church would not hold them. After the presentation the congregation congratulated Mrs. Major. Mrs. Major has been president of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First M. E. Church for 20 years. During the greater part of that time it has met at her home on South Charles street because of her uncertain health.

GOOD ANGEL OF TINY CRIPPLES

Prof. Lorenz Heals the Poor Without Pay.

HE TELLS OF HIS METHOD

SHOWS THAT GERM OF IT ORIGINATED IN AMERICA.

Believes That It Is His Duty to Relieve All the Suffering He Can, Without Regard to Remuneration.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Who is this Prof. Adolph Lorenz, who performs miracles in surgery?

Who is he who came to Chicago, from Austria, for a fee greater than any surgeon ever before received, and after dealing successfully with a most difficult case, spent the greatest part of a week attending, without charge, deformed children whose parents are poor.

Prof. Lorenz is a giant Teuton, with a beard and an exterior resembling King Leopold. This beard has a most familiar appearance.

When first you look at it you are reminded of King Leopold; then you think of Tolstoy and the painter, Verestchagin.

All this week he has been the central figure in truly pathetic scenes. Dozens of mothers with crippled children surround his suite at the Auditorium Annex, tearfully beseeching him to do something for their little ones. There were children with shrunken limbs, with twisted feet and distorted knee joints, and they were as eager as their mothers to have this man, who had cared for a millionaire's daughter, try to cure their deformities.

You want to know something about my early life? I repeated in response to a question from the Post-Dispatch correspondent.

"Well, in the first place, I was not born in Vienna. I was born on a farm in northern Austria. My father was not particularly wealthy, and when I was a lad, I had to work very hard. I did not go to Vienna until I began to study medicine. When I entered the university there, I soon became interested in orthopedic surgery, and I have since made this study the aim of my life. I was a poor student, at least so far as money goes, and I had no easy time of it."

AMERICAN WAS PIONEER.

"Some 15 years ago, when it was generally considered among surgeons that nothing could be done to effect a cure of congenital hip dislocation, Buckminster Brown, a surgeon living in Boston, conceived the idea of holding a patient in extension, by traction, to stretch the tissues sufficiently to bring the head of the femur opposite the socket. This treatment met with little approval in America, but was accepted in England and is used there today in the treatment of many cases."

"This was, however, a treatment almost as bad as the disease, and I would question whether any good resulted from such operations. At last it was found that patients were not cured, but the effect of this theory upon the profession was to stimulate interest and research in Germany, Italy, Austria and the United States some slight advancement was made."

"Nine years ago Pica, the famous Italian surgeon, and myself conceived the same idea of holding a patient without knife manipulation."

"I operated on a child and was successful; he operated on an adult and failed. 'The surgeons, both of Europe and America, were for years critics of the new method, but they were forced to accept this form of treatment, thinking manipulation seemingly apart from regular surgical procedure, and many verbal battles were fought as to whether or not I had made an actual reduction of the dislocation."

NO DOUBT ABOUT SUCCESS.

"There is no longer any dispute about it. That I did make and have since made such actual reductions has been proved, not only by anatomical dissection, which is unanswerable, but by the X-ray. The functional result proves that actual reductions are made."

"I believe it my duty to alleviate all the suffering I can, whether with rich or poor. If the rich pay a fee it will allow me to devote more time to the poor."

Dr. Lorenz is just 40 years old, but he looks to be 60. Probably his appearance of being advanced in age is due to the fact that during his youth he underwent the keenest of surgical procedures, and many verbal battles were fought as to whether or not I had made an actual reduction of the dislocation."

"I have known what it is to want a bed and breakfast," he said. Dr. Lorenz will depart for San Francisco next Thursday afternoon to the country to see a patient or two.

"I will be in New York Nov. 15 and home on Christmas," he said. When J. Ogden Armour brought Prof. Lorenz to Chicago and paid him $500,000 as assistant, Dr. Mueller, a fee variously estimated from $10,000 to $100,000 for treating his little daughter, he did not dream of the good that was to be done.

TREATS POOR FREE.

Twenty other little ones whom unkind nature had sent into the world with dislocated joints appeared to the surgeon. They had no money and little hope. In three clinics he straightened the deformed limbs of these 20 children.

The largest of his clinics—and it was largest ever held in Chicago—was in the amphitheater of the County Hospital on Friday. There were 100 physicians, students, surgeons and medical men present.

Many of the physicians came from towns hundreds of miles away. "Before so large a clinic," said Prof. Lorenz, when the last patient had been wheeled out, "We are poor in Austria and do not have such great amphitheatres. Everything is so vast in America—so large."

The proportion of females in congenital hip dislocation has been estimated at 80 per cent. Of the 20 operated upon, 16 were girls. Inaction, Prof. Lorenz is rapid and shows evidence of great strength, which the need in his operations. To the layman his work is massage, pure and simple—but about the severest ever seen.

The actual manipulation necessary to reduction averaged about four minutes, and in several instances, the click of the bone going into place could be plainly heard. The most difficult case was encountered in a child 11 years old.

The manipulations necessary in this case were extreme, and Prof. Lorenz said that though normally the elasticity of the great blood vessels near the hip joint saved them from injury in some cases, such as the last one, they were in great danger, and, if not, would require excruciation of the hip joint.

The pain and discomfort after the operation were minimum, as is the tension, which was the principal factor in all such cases, has been done away with by extreme manipulation.

Consul-General Ho Yow Says China Has Withdrawn the Recall of Its Minister.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Ho Yow, Imperial consul-general from China to San Francisco, says the recall of Minister Wu Ting Fang has been withdrawn and that he will remain at the Washington post. "The order for Sir Liang Chen Tung to supersede Lord Wu Ting Fang," said Ho Yow, "was issued three months ago. A month later, however, the Imperial decree was recalled and Lord Wu will remain as minister at Washington for another term of three years. This is the undeniable fact, although it has not been made known through the press of this country."

JUSTICE HARLAN'S SILVER JUBILEE

WILL HAVE BEEN SUPREME
JUDGE 25 YEARS DEC. 10.

THOUGH 69, HE IS LIVELY

Kindly and Considerate Nature Has Endeared Him to Lawyers Who Practice Before the Great Court.

POST-DISPATCH BUREAU,
1345 Pennsylvania avenue.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—John Marshall Harlan, associate justice of the United States supreme court, will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of his accession to the supreme bench Dec. 10 next. His colleagues will appropriately commemorate the occasion. Justice Harlan's service is not the longest on record, but it is an exceptional term of labor on the supreme bench.

He was appointed by President Hayes at the beginning of his term. Prior to that, he had led an active life as a lawyer and soldier. Although a native of Kentucky, Justice Harlan was an ardent unionist and raised the Tenth Kentucky volunteers, with which he served as colonel in Gen.

George H. Thomas' division of the army. His confirmation as a brigadier-general was pending in 1862 when the death of his father made his presence necessary at home. His career after that was wholly as a lawyer. When offered a diplomatic post abroad by President Hayes, he declined in order that he might devote himself to his profession.

Justice Harlan is one of the best preserved men in public life. He is 69 years of age, but, although of gigantic build, is as energetic and lively as a boy. He daily takes outdoor exercise and is one of the most persistent frequenters of the golf links. He rides and walks a good deal, and frequently makes the long journey from his home in Mount Pleasant to the capitol on foot. His towering form and springy step make him one of the best-known figures on the avenue.

Justice Harlan is one of the most genial and approachable men and, as a professor at the Columbian Law College, keeps in touch with the youth of the country. He will just as readily devote his time to assist a young student as to listen to the arguments of the ablest jurist of the land.

His kindly and genial nature has personally endeared him to every lawyer who practices in Washington, and there is talk in legal circles of making his silver jubilee as justice of the Supreme Court of the United States a professional affair.

"IT ISN'T THE EARNING THAT COUNTS," SAYS MRS. SAGE, "BUT THE KEEPING"

Aged Wife of the Noted Financier Explains
How He Made His Millions, and His Rules for Success in Life.

NEVER WAS LIKE OTHER BOYS OR MEN

MRS. RUSSELL SAGE.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—"Mr. Sage's lifelong rule to win success has been simple," said Mrs. Russell Sage to the Post-Dispatch correspondent today.

"It is this: I have done the best I could by the light of the day."

"If you study that rule carefully, grasp what it means, you cannot help being successful."

"It doesn't require genius."

"Just make the most of the opportunities that come to you."

The visitor secured her attention by assuring her that he did not intend to ask questions about her husband's health.

"Come in," she said, "and I'll tell you anything you care to know."

"He hasn't been ill, you know. He'll go to his office early Monday morning."

"How the papers go on if he coughs for a few minutes? It is wonderful. This little place has been full of newspaper men for days."

"What can I tell you?"

The visitor hesitated a moment. Then he said:

"I am a young man and I should like to know how to be successful. What made Mr. Sage successful?"

The financier's wife smiled reminiscently over her folded hands. She seemed to be looking back over her husband's many years of unceasing effort and unremitting toil.

"I'll tell you," she replied, "but I fear the telling won't do much good. You see, everybody wants to get rich so quickly nowadays."

"I suppose that if you were to look for the foundation of Mr. Sage's success you would find it in the fact that he was from the beginning as different as he is now from the young men of today."

"He never wasted time on dissipation—I mean in the so-called harmless dissipation."

"Life has always been an earnest business for him."

"His regular habits—eating and sleeping at the same hours every day and night—have kept him in splendid physical health. Why, he is 62 years old now, and he has never had what you could call a day's sickness—just a little illness once in a great while, but not a real sickness."

"When Mr. Sage was 12 years old he left the farm and went to work for a man in Troy, at a very small salary—a salary that the 12-year-old boy of today would laugh at. Yet, small as it was, he managed to save part of it."

"His wages were raised every year, and by the time he was 21, Mr. Sage had saved enough money to pay off a big mortgage on his father's farm."

"You see, it isn't the earning, but the keeping that counts."

"Before Mr. Sage left home his father gave him a maxim which he has never forgotten: 'Most any man can know how to make a dollar.'"

"Through all his life Mr. Sage has lived up to that advice."

"It isn't saving alone that counts, it is the knowing how to save."

"No one should stint himself of anything really useful."

"O, there is a great art in saving."

"Mr. Sage has never denied himself anything he wanted."

"When he was 21 years old Mr. Sage went into politics."

"He was the youngest congressman ever sent to Washington from Troy and he served two terms; but he decided that there was nothing real, no substantial success in politics, so he went back to business."

"Now, through all his business career, Mr. Sage has kept in mind the parable of the faithful servant in the nineteenth chapter of St. Luke and the reward given to him: 'Because thou hast been faithful to me, I will make thee ruler over 10 cities.'"

"How many young men now will pay any heed to that?"

"They all want to be great, to be successful, but they won't do the little things with little things. They want to jump to the top of the ladder right away."

"Here are the reporters paying $2 apiece to the cabmen to bring them to our house. The fare is really only $1, but the young men don't care."

MEN TOO AMBITIOUS.

"So many young men have the desire to be Vanderbilts and Morgans, but they throw away on foolishness whatever money they earn because they hope some day to make it in great quantities."

"They will not notice little things. I remember a young friend of ours who said to me one day in his twenty-first year:—"

"Mrs. Sage, I'm going to be as rich as"

Vanderbilt when I'm 40, and then I'll retire."

"Well, I said, 'I don't believe Mr. Vanderbilt ever spoke like that or thought like that. He just plodded along and did what he could. But great things were added unto him.'"

"And what do you suppose happened to that young man who was going to get rich quickly?"

"He married when he was 23, married a girl with extravagant tastes. They both had high social ambitions and they lived beyond their means. Before the year was out the young man killed himself."

"Mr. Sage's plan of life has been just the opposite of this. Instead of killing himself with too much ambition he has just plodded along from day to day and he didn't marry too young. That is a great error. And he didn't marry an extravagant wife with her head full of ridiculous notions—but there? You didn't come here to talk about Mrs. Sage, but Mr. Sage."

"You know my husband always makes every minute count."

"He never smokes. It isn't because he begrudges himself the luxury of tobacco or because a little of it would injure his health, but tobacco is a wasteful thing."

"Recreation may be the thief of time, but tobacco wastes an awful lot of it."

"What all the poets and writers and lovers of tobacco say about their cigars with which they lie back in their easy chairs and watch the blue rings mount upward and dream and see visions?"

SMOKING MAKES LOAFING.

"He says that smoking leads to loafing and idling the time away."

"He improves all his time. Why, he hasn't read one of the popular novels of the day. He considers them all waste of time. Of course, he has read the great novels of the past, but the frivolous modern stuff is not worth while."

"Everybody nowadays wants to be great. So many people, when they do anything worthy, expect to be pushed into prominence by public favor right away. How different with my friend, Louisa Alcott. Even after writing several successful novels she kept right on washing the dishes and doing the housework as usual. One day she sent 'Little Men' to the publishers, and soon thereafter found herself suddenly famous."

"One of the secrets of success is to go right on untroubled by victory as well as not cast down by defeat. I try to live that way. If I have helped a man, I am a great man it is because I have never sat waiting for things to happen."

"There is nothing in luck," she answered, decidedly and quickly.

NOTHING IN LUCK.

"A great many people say, 'I wish I were lucky as Sage. I wish I were as lucky as Morgan.'"

"What folly! Success comes to the man who has determination and persistence against all odds. Mr. Sage has those qualities instead of luck."

"For instance, he declared this morning that he was coming downstairs."

"There were so many drafts that Dr. Schimmelberg had him to come down, and he begged him not."

"What did he do, do you suppose?"

"I've been my own master for more than 80 years," Mr. Sage said, quite gruffly, "and I'm not going to be bossed around now."

"Do you know Mr. Sage has always been so busy that he hasn't had time to look around this country place of ours. He's like the railroad engineer who was so busy that he never saw his children except when their mother brought them down to the station to see him go by and said: 'Children, there's papa.'"

"The other morning Mr. Sage walked around the place like a stranger and suddenly turned to me and said:—"

"What a beautiful place this is!"

"That shows you what a busy man he is."

"As Mrs. Sage told of her husband's unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles or such hosts of grateful friends. Do not be persuaded that any other medicine is just as good. Any dealer who suggests something else has no interest in your case. He is seeking a larger profit. Follow the record of this medicine and remember that the thousands of cures of women whose letters are constantly printed in this paper were not brought about by 'something else,' but by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

GATES AFTER INDIANA MINES

Reported to Have Options on All of
Then, With View to Heading
New Trust.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 18.—One of the most prominent coal operators in Indiana is authority for the statement that John W. Gates and a man prominent in the tin plate trust have cash options on practically all the mines of the state and that a new coal trust will be launched some time next week.

This will mean, he said, that the block coal, used so largely in this city, will be raised in price. It is said that some of the dealers of the city have already received notification of an advance in price.

A year ago a Chicago syndicate was formed with the idea of consolidating Illinois and Indiana mines. The syndicate made considerable progress, but for some reason the plans fell through. It is not known what the purpose of the new trust is to include the Illinois mines in this new organization.

ZIEGLER DISMISSES BALDWIN

But Millionaire Will Send Out New North Pole Expedition, Which Peary May Command.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—"As a result of the investigations and conferences I have had with returning members of the Baldwin-Ziegler polar expedition, all business relations with Evelyn Briggs Baldwin and myself have been severed. I have not abandoned my idea of planting the Stars and Stripes at the North Pole and I am determined to send another expedition in the hope of achieving this result."

William Ziegler, millionaire, geographer and corporation financier, formally announced this today. He declined to go into further details.

A new expedition will cost $200,000. It is understood that Mr. Ziegler is negotiating with Peary to head one next year. Mr. Ziegler to put up the money.

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO WOMEN.

All Correspondence Is Sacredly Confidential

This is a very important consideration in a woman's correspondence with Mrs. Pinkham. It is a great satisfaction to feel that one woman can write to another telling her the most private and confidential details about her illness, and know that her letter will be seen by a woman only,—a woman full of sympathy for her sick sisters, and with a knowledge of woman's ills greater than that possessed by any other person.

Mrs. Pinkham never violates the confidence thus entrusted to her, and although she publishes thousands of testimonials from women who have benefited by her advice and medicine, never in all her experience has she published such a letter without the full consent, and often by special request of the writer.

The reason Mrs. Pinkham is so amply qualified to give advice in cases of female ills is for the reason that over one hundred thousand cases come before her each year,—some personally, others by mail, and this has been going on for twenty years, day after day, and day after day. Twenty years of constant success,—think of the knowledge thus gained! Surely, women are wise in seeking advice from a woman of such experience, especially when it is absolutely free.

As an illustration of the good coming from such advice we herewith publish two letters and portrait of Miss Hattie DeGroat, the reading of which should give every sick woman confidence in Mrs. Pinkham's ability to help them. This is only one of thousands of the same kind of letters which Mrs. Pinkham has on file.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have read with interest your advice to others so much that I thought I would write to you for I have been suffering for a long time. I have such bearing-down pains, and such shooting pains go through me. I have headache, backache, and feel tired. Menstruation is very painful, sometimes have to stop work and lie down. My stomach bloats terribly, and I am troubled with whites. Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain, July 24th, 1900. MISS HATTIE DEGROAT, Succasunna, N. J."

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I can hardly find words to thank you for your advice and wonderful Vegetable Compound. I was in a terrible state, every part of my body ached, was very nervous, had hysterical spells. I think I would have become insane had it not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Your letter told me just what to do, and your medicine cured me, and I cannot express my thanks.
March 8th, 1901. MISS HATTIE DEGROAT, Succasunna, N. J."

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles or such hosts of grateful friends. Do not be persuaded that any other medicine is just as good. Any dealer who suggests something else has no interest in your case. He is seeking a larger profit. Follow the record of this medicine and remember that the thousands of cures of women whose letters are constantly printed in this paper were not brought about by "something else," but by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

THE OLD WORLD AND THE NEW

AMERICAN GENERALS VISIT THE EMPERESS EUGENIA.

STRIKING PICTURE PRESENTED

Generals Corbin, Young and Wood Take Their Departure From London for the United States.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—The visit of Gen. Corbin and Young to England was concluded this morning when they left Waterloo railroad station to embark on the American line steamer Philadelphia at Southampton. A crowd of friends was present, including Sir Thomas Lipton, Secretary of the Admiralty, and the Hon. Mr. Balfour, representing the British Government.

The special saloon car reserved for the American officers was filled with the military chiefs, their aids-de-camp and the ladies of the party. Sir Thomas Lipton presented Mrs. Corbin with a large box of orchids.

Gen. Young said: "The trouble with English hospitality is that they make you feel you are doing them a favor in accepting it. It was all a little more than we could do to take advantage of all the kindnesses proffered here. Our stay was a little longer than we expected and now I am looking forward to getting back to work at the war college."

King Edward asked the general for their photographs. One of the most interesting features of the stay of the generals here was the visit which they made at Farnborough to former Empress Eugenia, who was quite delighted to make the acquaintance of the Americans. The Empress usually retains strict seclusion in her quiet country home and the occasion was a complete exception. One of those present said: "I have seldom seen such a picturesque contrast of the old world and the new as when the Empress Eugenia, leaning on the arm of Gen. Young, who towered above her as she conducted the Americans over her residence, pointed out the priceless mementoes of the imperialistic days of France."

CITY NEWS.

As the facts in the case become better known to the piano-buying public, it is not throwing bouquets at itself at being wheeled into paying from 50 to 75 per cent more for a piano than it could get it at the CRAWFORD Store!

Mr. Grice Sent to St. Vincent's.—Charles L. Grice, assistant general passenger agent of the Burlington railroad, was taken to St. Vincent's Asylum yesterday afternoon. He was received at the City Hospital Thursday morning, where he had been sent by the attorneys representing him and his wife in a domestic trouble. His mental affliction is believed to have been a result of a physical breakdown.

OH, IT IS SO EASY TO GET A POST-DISPATCH STICKER BOOK!

Mamma, mamma, here's a treat!
See my Sticker Book—how neat!
Mama, Will, Rose and Little
Want one! So does Little Pete!

Stickers, stickers—who said stickers?
Stickers, stickers, who would get?
Stickers, stickers, perfect beauties,
You can find, already yet!

The sticker craze is the most popular fad that ever struck St. Louis.
What is home without stickers?
All the children want them. "Mama, give me a sticker!" This is their daily cry. And they always get them. Having them, naturally, they want a sticker book to stick them in. That is why they come to the Post-Dispatch, for the Post-Dispatch Sticker Book is the finest thing of the kind ever manufactured.

Mamma, mamma, let me run
Out to get a book—just one!
Yes, a sticker
Album quicker
Than you can say "Jack Robinson!"

It doesn't take a policeman to get a new subscriber to the Post-Dispatch, and that is all any boy or girl is required to do to get one of those elegant Post-Dispatch Sticker Books.

The process is very simple.
See somebody who is not a regular reader of the Post-Dispatch. No matter who it is—your father, your big brother, your uncle, the lady next door or Mr. Jones in the next block.
Get him or her—whoever it is—subscribe for the Daily and Sunday Post-Dispatch for three months.
No longer—three months.
Get him or her—whoever it is—to subscribe the circulation department of the Post-Dispatch, either by postal card or letter, together with your own name and address.
If you prefer to be a little more formal, either call at the Post-Dispatch office and secure an order blank, or write for one. The order will be investigated at once, and just as soon as the mail can carry it you will receive your Post-Dispatch Sticker Book and one full set of stickers.

Now, isn't that simple?

DENNY'S ACTION AIDS BOODLERS

Moved That Mayor's Ordinance Calling for $15,000 be Returned to the Council.

Delegate Charles J. Denny, who is under indictment for alleged bribery and perjury and who is at liberty under $45,000 bond, succeeded in blocking Mayor Wells' ordinance for an additional appropriation for $15,000 to aid the circuit attorney in prosecuting the boodlers last night.

The Council sent the bill to the House yesterday, together with another appropriating $15,000 for the street department, and, as the title of the second bill failed to specify the intention of the appropriation, Denny moved that the bill be returned to the Council and the motion was carried.

Denny learned later what the second bill was for, and he moved that the vote on the former motion be reconsidered, and, on a substitute motion, the House adjourned to consider the bill on Monday. Denny's hasty action was criticized by his colleagues, including Harry Faulkner, who attended a meeting for the first time since he was indicted on the charge of bribery.

On Delegate Burke's objection, the bill providing for a change of the scale of wages in the high and low service of the water department was laid over until labor leaders could be consulted. A bill for the appropriation of $150 for the plumbing inspector was introduced by Delegate Geraghty.

FUNERAL OF JAMES STEWART.

Services to be Held Today in Grand Avenue Presbyterian Church.

The funeral service of James Stewart, who died in Pittsburgh, Pa., on July 5, was held this afternoon in the chapel of the Grand Avenue Presbyterian Church, Rev. Mr. John M. Cannon conducting the services. The body will be buried at Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Mr. Stewart was a prominent contractor and identified with religious enterprises in St. Louis for many years. When he succumbed his wife was unable to accompany the body from Pittsburgh, and the son, James C. Stewart, being in England, the funeral was postponed until the latter could reach home.

Father Coffey Won't Resign.

On the promise that an amendment similar to the one introduced and defeated in the convention of the Knights of Fatima debate, Cohron was recently ousted from leading support directly or indirectly to saloons and from signing a petition for a saloon license either as an individual or as agent acting for the owner of property, would be introduced at the next convention, Rev. Father James T. Coffey, pastor of St. John's Catholic Church, will continue to act as supreme spiritual director of the organization.

He declined to permit his name to be placed in nomination at Kansas City because the amendment referred to was so overwhelmingly defeated. Later another amendment, similar, but not so radical as the former, was passed and the supreme officers requested Fr. Coffey to reconsider his determination and they would see that the amendment he advocates would be placed before the next convention, when it believed it will be passed.

Young Men's Institute Ball.

A dramatic entertainment and ball is to be given in the Pickwick Theater Friday evening, Oct. 24, under the joint auspices of the Young Men's Institute and the Booth-Mansfield Dramatic Club. The Young Men's Institute is a national Catholic young men's organization, with headquarters in San Francisco and has a membership of over 2,000. The Booth-Mansfield Dramatic Club is the foremost society of local thespians, nonprofessional, and is in charge of Prof. Charles L. Booth. Vaudeville numbers will be given as an introductory, followed by the third act of "Hamlet," and the fourth act of "Macbeth," and the play "The Merchant of Venice," and the play "The Taming of the Shrew."

WOMAN WON BOWLING PRIZE AT 86 YEARS

VANQUISHED LAST OPPONENT
AFTER 3 HOURS' PLAYING.

THUS CELEBRATED BIRTHDAY

"I Expect to Bowl Until I Am 100 Years Old," Declares Mrs. Augusta Asmusen.

Special to the Post-Dispatch
NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—"I expect to bowl until I am 100 years old; it's the only thing that keeps me cheerful and in good health," said Mrs. Augusta Asmusen today.

Mrs. Asmusen celebrated her 86th birthday a week ago Wednesday by taking the first prize at a tournament of the German-American Women's Bowling League in the Bronx.

She won the prize after rolling the ball for over three hours without intermission, vanquishing a score of women less than half her age.

In competition she uses the medium-sized ball to exert more speed in delivery, though in the regular weekly practice games she scores her strikes with the heaviest ball in the alley.

She has not been sick a day in twenty years, and attributes her exceptional health and vigor solely to her regular living and systematic exercise.

Mr. Asmusen, who retired from the undertaking business over a dozen years ago, is considered well off. Though only a year younger than his wife, he has the air of a man of 55. His body is solid and compact, his head firm and full and he walks with a firm and steady tread. He deplores the publicity that has been thrust upon them since his wife's last birthday.

"We are old people," he said complacently yesterday, "and it is not becoming for us to be mentioned in the newspapers. We have bowed quietly for so many years that we will have to stop now because of the newspaper writings. Only our friends know of our bowling until last week, but now everybody in the Bronx asks about us. Besides we are getting old," he concluded, as he turned again to his paper.

JUROR'S EXCISE IS HIS WEDDING

O. D. NORTON SUMMONED TO SERVE ON MONDAY.

MARRIED FRIDAY AND GONE

All Plans Were Made and 'Twixt Love and Duty He Chose the Former.

When the bailiff of the Circuit Court calls the names of the petit jurors Monday morning there will be one name to which will come no answer, because of a certain god called Cupid.

Three times will the bailiff say, "O. D. Norton." Three times will nothing but ever-busy Echo respond. Perhaps Sheriff Dickmann will relate a story of calls at his office when he was not at home and a telephone engagement that was never kept. But if he knew things he would tell a story like unto this:

For months O. D. Norton of the Mound City Business College and Miss Hannah M. Hoyle, one of the best-known stenographers in St. Louis, have been planning their marriage. They made ready the house in which they are to live, they selected the places they are to visit on their wedding tour, and when October was half over they packed their trunks ready to depart from St. Louis Friday night for Chicago, where the marriage ceremony was to be performed.

Those were their plans. The City of St. Louis had other notions. Jurors are so much needed that new ones must be summoned every few days. Mr. Norton's summons came Friday, requesting him to be in court Monday. He had much to do—men always have when they are preparing to be married—but he managed to go to the sheriff's office several times Friday to request that he might be excused from duty Monday. The sheriff was out each time. Friday night, when the trunks were all packed, when Miss Hoyle, in her tailor-made suit of brown cloth, with applique trimming and hat to match, waited at Union Station and Mr. Norton stood in his office in the Hermann building, saying a last few words to his business partner, George A. Hanks, there came a message from the sheriff. It read: "Meet me in my office at 10 o'clock Saturday morning."

The message talked like duty, but the bride-to-be awaited him. Duty didn't score, and there was a marriage ceremony in Chicago, despite the fact that jurors are much needed in St. Louis. Later Mr. and Mrs. Norton departed for Niagara Falls and the East, to be gone for ten days.

That's the story Sheriff Dickmann might tell. If he does the judge may pronounce the absent juror "excused."

Murder Suspects Released.
Henry Wiprecht, 23 years old, and Louis, his brother, 25 years old, and Louis, as suspected accomplices in a murder committed at De Soto, Mo., last Wednesday, have been released. The police, after a complete investigation, are satisfied that they were in no way connected with the murder, although they were in the vicinity of De Soto at the time. Louis has been released. The elder Wiprecht is being held on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

The affair was also a family reunion and many members of the Byrns family were present. Refreshments were served and music was furnished by Fred Edwin Borgelt.

TRIED AND HANGED IN THREE HOURS

NEGRO MURDERER QUICKLY PUNISHED IN TEXAS.

ALL FORMALITIES OBSERVED

Accused Man Waived Right to Delay in Order to Make Execution Legal.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NACAGDOCHES, Tex., Oct. 15.—A mob would have been little swifter in punishing Jim Buchanan, negro murderer, than were the regularly constituted authorities, who tried, condemned and hanged him in three hours and observed all the formalities of the law.

Members of the mob, which had wanted to take justice into its own hands, had the privilege of assisting in the hanging in vindication, instead of in defiance of the law.

After Buchanan was suspected of killing Duncan Hicks and his wife and daughter in this county Monday, a mob caught his life. Gov. Bayers called out three companies of militia to guard him, and they took him to the prison at Bunk for safe-keeping. Yesterday he was brought here for a hearing.

The negro clung to the officers of the law, and when a proposition was made to him that he consent to be hanged immediately he gave his consent, waiting his right for 30 days' delay under the law after sentence of death had been pronounced and of taking an appeal to the higher courts. A jury was selected on the spot, and upon the negro's plea of guilty being received, he was hanged to an improvised scaffold amid the jeers of the mob.
